ExpoCharger International, Inc. wins contract to redesign and engineer
Airbrush.com, a top-ranked airbrush industry portal.

Swansey, NH—December 3, 2003—In November, ExpoCharger International, Inc. (ECI) won the contract to redesign and develop Airbrush.com, a leading industry portal for airbrushing enthusiasts. Working closely with the site owners, ECI created an improved, dynamic site that focuses on the user community.

"The feedback we've seen in the site's forum from the airbrush community is overwhelmingly positive. Realizing the site owner's vision successfully is what it's all about," comments ECI president, Dana Chenier. In addition to the site's forum where airbrush enthusiasts meet and share information, Airbrush.com provides a gallery where artists can create a profile and show off their work. The site also encourages members to share knowledge by submitting tips and how-to guides.

ECI used leading edge Microsoft .NET technology to develop the site. A complete administration area was designed to provide the site owner total control of the site data without having to be a database expert. The new Airbrush.com Web site was successfully launched the week of Thanksgiving.
